11th Annual Advances in Peritoneal Dialysis Symposium

Course Description

This is a one day in person conference on home dialysis sponsored by the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai. Practitioners, researchers, clinician-scientists and RNs who are experts in the field of kidney disease will discuss current developments in the field of Peritoneal Dialysis and related dialysis modalities. There will be a variety of topics, including roundtable discussion with dietician and patients on PD on ways to overcome the challenges faced by patients in managing their nutrition.

Conference Objectives

- Review the physiology of peritoneal membrane, summarize the best practices to preserve the performance of the membrane and review the role of adequacy testing.
- Discuss the challenges and strategies to improve nutrition in PD patients.
- Examine and discuss the risks and benefits of Urgent start PD and strategies to help patients switch between home modalities if the need arises.

Target Audience

This activity has been designed for nephrologists, internists, PCPs, nephrology nurses and other allied health care clinicians caring for patients with kidney disorders.

Accreditation

The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai is accredited by Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Credit Designation

The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai designates this internet live activity for a maximum of 6.00 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

National Association of Nephrology Technicians/Technologists (NANT) is an approved provider of continuing contact hours exclusively for nephrology nurses and technicians participating in pre-approved educational programs. A recommended maximum of 6.00 credits based on a 50-minute hour will be granted for this activity. These contact hours may be used for certification application and recertification to NNCC, BONENT, and NNCO certification programs

Verification of Attendance

Verification of attendance will be provided to all professionals.
