PROGRAM DESCRIPTION
In light of recent advances in the care of transgender youth and youth with diabetes and growth disorders, the Mount Sinai Division of Pediatric Endocrinology and Diabetes seeks to empower a broad array of clinicians to provide the highest level of care to people with diabetes and growth disorders and transgender individuals. Participants will learn about pathophysiology, treatment goals and methods for diabetes and growth disorders, current issues related to the care of transgender youth, and will emerge more confident dealing with diabetes and endocrine challenges.

TARGET AUDIENCE
Pediatricians, family practitioners, scientists, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, diabetes educators, nutritionist, dieticians, social workers, residents, students and others involved in the care of transgender youth and young people with diabetes and growth disorders.

GOALS AND OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of the conference, the participants will be able to:

• Identify the underlying etiologies of growth disorders and understand a systematic approach to hormonal and genetic testing in the subgroup of patients with short stature.

• Recognize clinical evidence based advances in the treatment of type II Diabetes Mellitus.

• Understand the affirmative approach to the health care of transgender children and understand how recommendations have changed in the recent guidelines.
